Allston-Brighton joins citysquares.com

Citysquares.com., and starting soon, the local businesses that make Allston and Brighton unique, will have a partner that is committed to their success.

Citysquares.com went online in October 2005, providing visitors a local way to connect with some of the most diverse neighborhoods in Greater Boston. Citysquares.com Chief Executive Officer Ben Saren said he expects the new Allston and Brighton sites to be up and running in March.

Citysquares.com contains a complete directory of neighborhood businesses as well as resources such as community news, public services, events, local artist galleries, classifieds and more. According to Saren, "Our goal is to enhance local neighborhoods by strengthening small businesses. So far, the retailers, service firms and others who have signed on have received tremendous response. We are thrilled."

Other neighborhoods that have joined Citysquares.com include Coolidge Corner, Central Square, Davis Square and Brookline Village.
